

Mills Oakley announces 2018 promotions

June 4, 2018: Top 10 Australian firm Mills Oakley has announced 30 new promotions for 2018, including two new partners in Perth.

The new partners are Workplace Relations, Employment and Safety (WRES) specialist Daniel White and Corporate specialist Andrew Crean. Both Daniel and Andrew are currently Special Counsel in the Mills Oakley Perth office.

Mills Oakley CEO John Nerurker congratulated Daniel and Andrew on their promotions, which he noted were an affirmation of the firm's strategy in Western Australia.

"It has been three years since we launched our Perth WRES practice and Daniel has been instrumental in developing the team into a respected, Legal 500-recommended practice," he said. "We have also been very clear in our strategy to use our Corporate practice as a source of growth and referrals to other parts of the firm and Andrew has been a key part of that story in Perth."

"We are delighted to see Andrew and Daniel rewarded for their hard work," Mr Nerurker concluded.

Andrew's primary practice areas include private and public mergers & acquisitions, joint ventures, commercial contracts, FIRB approvals, shareholder agreements, corporate governance, takeovers and other control transactions, capital raisings and Corporations Act & ASX Listing Rule compliance.

Daniel focuses on assisting clients on a range of contentious and non-contentious industrial relations, employment and workplace discrimination/harassment issues. He has a particular interest in industrial relations strategy (including enterprise bargaining), union management (dealing with right of entry, industrial action and/or picketing) and employment related matters in a diverse range of industries.
