

Mills Oakley expands family law team with new partner appointed

7 September 2023

Highly regarded family lawyer Martina Thornton Storgato is set to join leading national law firm Mills Oakley as a partner in the family law practice group. Together with her team, Martina's appointment brings the firm's capability in family law to 39 practitioners.

Martina has forged a formidable reputation throughout Sydney's Hills district as the founder of one of only a few specialist family law practices in the region. She is now looking forward to building on her history of success.

"I'm delighted to be joining the team at Mills Oakley as a partner – and that my entire team will be coming with me," Martina said. "By joining forces with a leading national law firm, I will be able to offer clients a range of complementary services that only a large firm can provide."

Mills Oakley family law partner Susan Warda said Martina and her team would add valuable expertise to the firm's offering.

"Martina's appointment confirms the strong growth Mills Oakley has enjoyed in the family law space. It further cements our position as a leading national law firm in Australia."

Martina and her team join Mills Oakley from 11 September 2023.
